

SHORT SKIS

COMPARISONS PROVE . . . "SHORTEE" SKIS ONLY 33" OVER-ALL

Practice skiing on your 10-minute coffee break? Learn to ski in one day? In your living room?

Believe it or not, this is true and now possible, according to a six-foot-two-inch mountaineer and ski instructor from Brattleboro, Vermont, Cliff Taylor. He has introduced to the sport—at Aspen, Colorado—short skis only 33 inches in over-all length. He assures beginners to the slopes, and novices to any sport, that they can ski in one day—with control—on his short skis.

Instruction and the learning process, he claims, can be accomplished on a 10-minute coffee break at the office, or in the quiet of your own living room. Taylor offers a kit to novices: an Indoor Parallel Ski-in-a-Day Lesson Kit.

The lesson involves standing on a pair of fiberboard skis (supplied), with their tips pointed toward a printed "parallel turn meter." A phonograph (yours) is turned on and a record (supplied) is played. The record describes the action. With friendly voices, incidentally, belonging to known radio and TV personalities.

"Parallel Skiing" is a term applied to turning with both feet together, rather than "stemming" or "snow-plowing"—long-ski terms, where the feet are separated. Parallel skiing looks more graceful, and is usually the mark of an expert, according to Cliff Taylor.

Short skis—and their use, as tutored by the Taylor instruction system—help in easy and quick learning of the basic method used by olympic skiers and ski racers.

With our own winter just around the slope, one might say, maybe we'll hie ourselves to the nearest snow-capped mountain and give those little flat boards a go . . . If you're game, join us!

NOTICE

The Hope Iris Club has postponed its meeting from Tuesday, November 8 to Tuesday, November 15. The 2:30 p.m. meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Harold Stephens at Blewins.

WMA Of Garrett Memorial Church Senior WMA of Garrett Memorial Baptist Church met Wednesday, Nov. 2 at 2 p.m. in the home of Norene Purdie with Iris Warren as co-hostess.

The meeting was opened with business by the President, Norene Purdie. Ann Johnson voiced the opening prayer. Dale Bearden, the program chairman, presented a wonderful devotion on "Being Thankful". She then turned the program over to Gwen Allen. Her topic was "Thanksgiving." It was very inspiring. Several songs were sung that fitted in with the program and Gwen Allen sang, "Thank You Lord."

Refreshments were served to 15 members and 4 visitors by Mrs. Pichard, Cloe Pelrice, Thelma Messer and Gwen Allen.

BARBS

By Walter C. Parkes

Inflation is when prices are blown way up and recession is when they are punctured.

We wonder why gals with skinny legs and knobby knees think miniskirts make them look glamorous.

Medicos say a new vaccine may eradicate measles. That's really spot news.

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT!

This column is for young people their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help US!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush-off.

SHE'S TOO FAT FOR HIM

Dear Helen: My fiancée is in every way a fine girl, but she is getting much too fat and I can't stand fat women. Her mother must weigh near 300 pounds and her sister constantly diets but is still well packed. My gal says, "That's the way I am and if you really love me it makes no difference."

But it does so I wrote her this poem:

I'll love you in the morning, I'll love you in the night.

I'll love you in curl papers, and when you look a fright.

But Kathy, my dear Kathy, you'll be right on the mat,

With door shut tight behind you, if ever you get fat!

— And she gave me back the ring. She says she is lucky to have found out in time how no good I am.

Helen, she just eats too much, that's all. What did I do wrong? —ARCHIE

Dear Archie: What did you do RIGHT? You're lucky to have found out in time she'd make a fat wife with a dull sense of humor and a sharp temper. —H.

Dear Helen: All I want is privacy! It isn't that I have anything to hide, but I want to know I can put something in a dresser drawer and it will not be snooped into. Like letters. I know when my mother has read them—she never puts them back in the right order. There's nothing secret in them, but why doesn't she ask me, instead of sneaking?

I feel like singing "Hang up Snoopy" when she gets on the extension.

My diary too. I put wild things in it just to get her going, and, boy, does she pump me on them.

One of these days I'm going to write in it, "I met Daddy down town with a beautiful blonde, but he told me not to tell Mom." That'll fix her! Won't it? —Dear Daughter: That'll fix YOU — But good!

... And why shoot your father down — he's not even in the battle?

You might write in your diary: "Dear Mom: Couldn't you ASK me instead?" and add the same little note on the last page of your letters. But the best solution (if there IS a solution to overly curious mothers) is a family discussion on privacy.

Only in cases of extreme emergency should parents stoop to snooping, and, even then, there are better ways. — H.

Dear Helen: I don't ask that you print this or even that you read it, but I must express my feelings via pen, as I can't express them any other way.

To give love, you must receive it. When you grow up in a home devoid of love, how can you fall in love? How can you learn to show it? My family was very cold. I have known nothing but yelling and swearing — or worse not being spoken to for weeks at a time. Their punishment was to make the child eat alone, threaten to disown her, call her names.

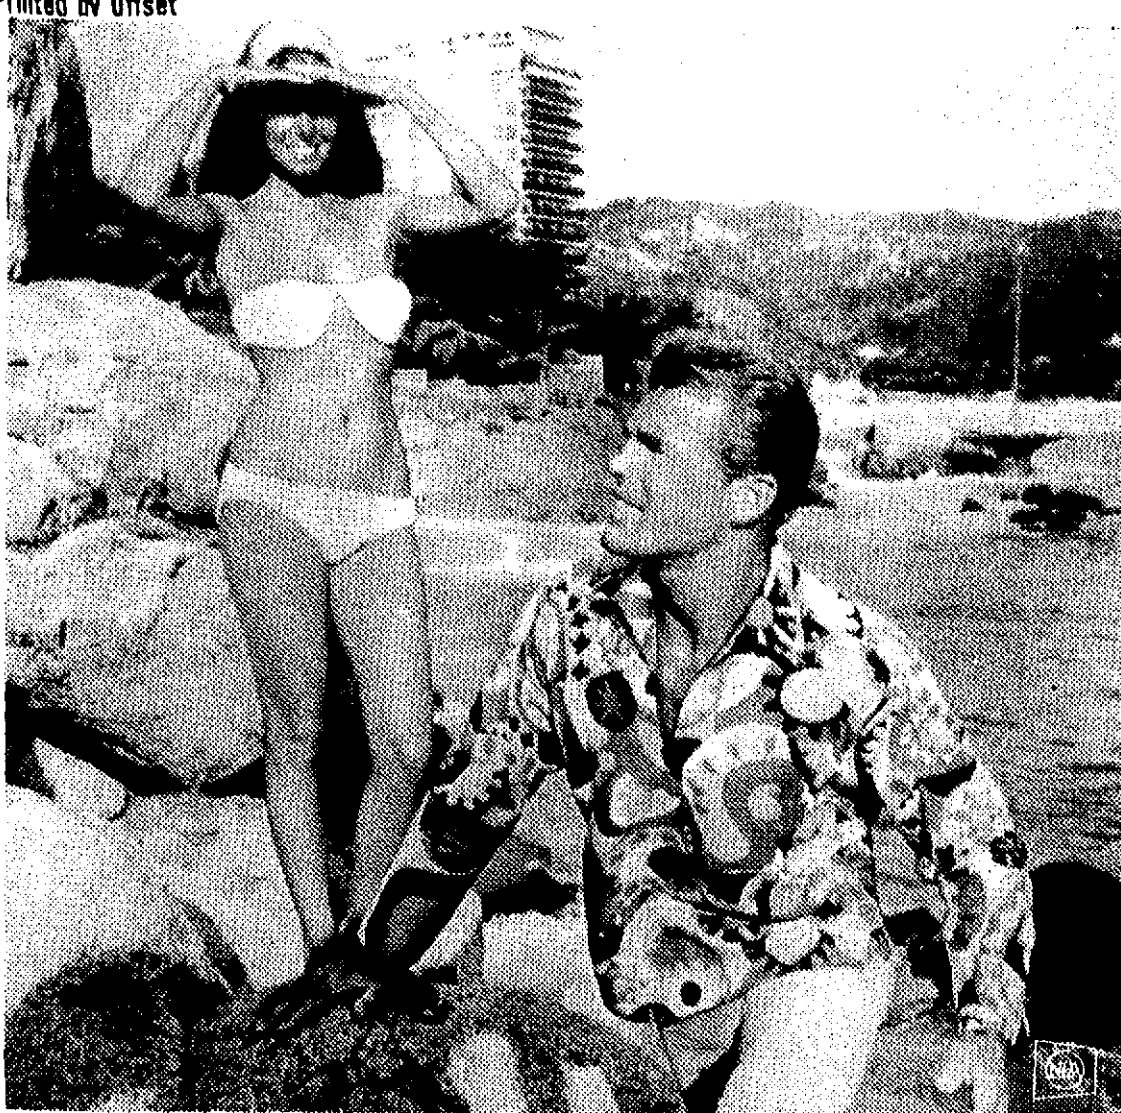

I wish people could understand how important it is to LOVE their children. When they do wrong, they should show them it is wrong, but not hate them.

I'm old enough now to start my own family, but how can I, when the words "I love you" only mean unhappiness? How do I know my children might not suffer from my coldness?

Helen, make a plea to parents to show their children how much they care. It may be too late for me, but not for others. — Lisa

Dear Lisa: I t isn't too late for you, honey. A miserable childhood can only brighten your life if you brood about it, and let the bitterness build a wall between you and those who are waiting to help.

The Mental Health Association in your city will direct you to a qualified counselor. And don't let cost hold you back. Fees can be arranged. — H.

as you would

...continuing with the Golden Rule. And it is doubtful if any words of Jesus have been quoted more and with approval. It strikes our conscience and our reason. Therefore, "As You Would." That puts the Rule on a very personal basis... better take a look at yourself before you look at your neighbor. Do you know your mind? What do you want for yourself... health, wealth, honor, knowledge, favor and forgiveness of God? If you had three wishes that would be granted, how would you select them from the myriad claims upon your devotion? Paul lists the ends for which he strove... "love, joy, peace, patience, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness and self control." Was he wise? Would you put material values above these personal virtues? What goods are necessary and which of them could you do without? Perhaps it would help to reflect on your record. Actually, it will be decided exactly... "AS YOU WOULD."

More on the Golden Rule next week.

You In The Church
The Church In You — form a combination for good. Every man, woman and child needs the influence of the church. So, come let us go into the house of the Lord. Let us support her program of service to humanity, be a faithful worker, a daily bible reader and attend services regularly.

Seek Ye First The Kingdom of God
And His Righteousness;
And All These Things Shall Be Added Unto You.

You Can Do This Best Through Regular Worship At Church. Our Ministers and These Sponsoring Firms Urge You To Attend Your Church Regularly.

Change Works Its Corrosion
Upon Us As We Approach
Our Rendezvous With Death
But, We Are Under Sentence
To Honor God, To
Ever Support His Church

NEGRO CHURCH NEWS

The Better Way Society met at the Rising Star Baptist Church Tuesday night, November 1, 1966. In our last meeting we elected the following officers for the year of 1966-67 who are: President-Evelyn Walker; Vice President-Ala Mae Garland; Secretary-Merlyn Weston; Assn. Sec.-Earnestine Mitchell; Treasurer-Will J. Witherspoon; Reporter-Linda Mitchell; Sponsor-Miss G. Smith; Superintendent-Mrs. N. Washington.

ANNOUNCEMENT

There will be a Bingo Party Saturday night Nov. 5 in the annex of the Rising Star Baptist Church starting at 7:30.

KILLS A RUMOR

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Before the exhibition football game between the Houston Oilers and New York Jets, reports from the south had it that the Jets were making jokes about the Oilers. Particularly giant Ernie Ladd. "Do they think we're crazy?" responded offensive guard Sam DeLuca. "Ladd is the best defensive tackle in pro football. I know. I've played opposite him." DeLuca is a tactful man. He's a high school teacher when he's not on the football field.

NOT MODERN ART, but the need for a new space age antenna for communicating with a satellite is what prompted this creation. Designed and built at Electronic Communications, Inc., in St. Petersburg, Fla., it will be mounted on an airplane.

OFF-YEAR ELECTIONS

Tradition is behind Republican efforts to pick up congressional seats Nov. 8. Historically, elections in nonpresidential years have favored the party out of power. In the last 50 years, covering 12 "off-year" elections, there have been only two major exceptions and one virtual standoff. In 1934, the Republicans, already flattened by the Roosevelt landslide of 1932, suffered further congressional losses—giving up an additional 14 House and 11 Senate seats to Democrats. In 1958, with the Republicans again the minority party, they dropped 47 House and 13 Senate seats to the Democrats. In 1962, the GOP managed to pick up two in the House but dropped four in the Senate. Newschart shows off-year gains and losses since World War II. Party indicated for each election was out of power.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

Your Mouth 'Tells' on You To a Discerning Dentist

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Remember when daddy could look into your eyes and see all the naughty things you did? Daddy's magic was short-lived. It wasn't long before one discovered that mommy was putting the finger on you.

Some daddies have now been superseded by psychiatrists who usually employ more sophisticated methods. And do you know by whom else? You guessed it—dentists. Your dentist spends many hours with you and sees you under most trying circumstances. He learns lots about you.

A mouth examination by an alert dentist often reveals many telltale signs that may reflect your personality. For instance, if the biting surfaces of your teeth are worn in peculiar patterns, and many flat, polished facets are in evidence, it's quite obvious that you're a bruxist or teeth grinder. Since teeth grinding is due, in part at least, to emotional disturbances, it suggests that you are under stress, a condition that is often magnified by even the most simple dental procedures.

If you are a woman whose front teeth are rough and irregular, with a number of tiny notches in the biting edges, you're a thread biter. Men with similar notched biting edges are likely to be fishermen who impatiently bite leaders when tying flies.

One avid fisherman wanted to have his front teeth crowned with sharp-edged stainless steel so that he could cut leaders neater and faster.

If the outer edge of your tongue is serrated so that the notches correspond with backs of teeth, you're a tongue thruster. This also may be an emotional symptom.

If the mucous membrane lining cheeks looks as though it's been through the meat grinder, you're a cheek biter. Maybe your wife is giving you a hard time because it seems that more men than women are cheek biters.

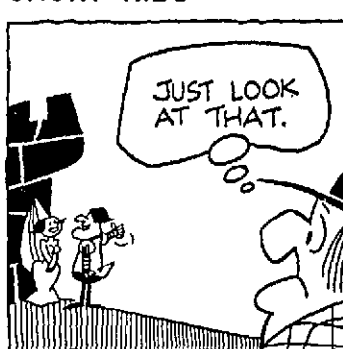

Many dentists maintain they can detect alcoholics by the "look" of the mucous membrane lining the floor of the mouth. The big giveaway, of course, is "green tongue." Some alcoholics think they can camouflage Martini breath by sucking chlorophyll tablets. This not only produces a more distasteful odor, but a green tongue even looks vile.

It's a dentist's duty to recognize these signs and symptoms so that he can comfort a patient when comfort is most needed, when a kind word, a distraction, or sometimes not saying anything, may make the difference between a dental session torn by fear and anxiety and one which can be said to be almost pleasant.

Lauren Bacall: The Second Time

By JOAN CROSBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Because she is once again a star, Lauren Bacall is being written about a lot. She is reading most of it, too, and is not at all sure she likes the picture being presented.

"I've been caught in this Bogie thing," she says, referring to the cult that has grown around the legend of her late husband, Humphrey Bogart. "Writers apparently think this is what people want to read. It's not all I talk about, and it's certainly not madly attractive for Jason (her husband, Jason Robards). I find it unfair, because it makes it sound as if I am living in the past."

If there ever was a sultry female living in the present it is Lauren, who is never called that. She is Betty to everyone, mainly because it is her real name.

"In my work, this is probably the most rewarding time for me. I feel I am standing alone as a performer and am being accepted in that category for the first time. I also feel I have earned it. Then, too, I am damn lucky, because there are a lot of good actors who are not working."

The vehicle which has brought tawny Lauren back into the spotlight is the hit comedy, "Cactus Flower," in which she plays a primly starched dentist's assistant whose starch melts like ice in August once she sees a chance to get her man. She is a delight in it.

She was munching on a cheese sandwich in the den of the 10-room Robards apartment in New York, surrounded by the pewter objects she collects avidly.

She's a straightforward, down-to-earth woman with no pretension and no patience with those who have any. Her answers are honest and outspoken, and she does not try to hide the fact that for two and a half years, she couldn't get work.

"I have never been the kind to stomp my feet and demand a role. There are a lot of those in Hollywood. They look lovely and feminine but they are killers and every day is will-of-iron time."

"Before Bogie died, I was thought of by producers and directors as his wife, rather than as an actress. They knew

LAUREN BACALL

I wouldn't leave him, so they figured my career came second, that I didn't give a damn. So the offers stopped coming, and they didn't start after Bogie died.

"I have always cared as much as anyone else, but I have just never been as forceful about it."

The only ripple in the otherwise smooth stream of Betty's life is one of those little ironies of fate. Her husband, after years as a highly respected theater star, is suddenly finding a busy career in films, while she now feels her career is on the stage.

"I think Jason is going to be a big movie star, and I'll be on the stage," she threw back her head and laughed. "Those are the things that make you want to slit your throat."

Thanksgiving: American Traditional

For most people, the one meal of the year that should never be varied is Thanksgiving dinner. This holiday is remembered by all of us as one of the highlights of early childhood. Relatives far and near gathered 'round to exchange the news of the months passed, share the ample groaning board, and to give thanks for the year to come.

Part of the tradition is to use the best of everything for the feast. Beautiful crystal like Fostoria's "Classic Gold" with gold edgeline is washed to its most sparkling and proudly displayed throughout the meal. This gently rounded stemware adds grace and richness to the table, holding first-course fruit, water and wine. Best china and the most ornate crystal candelabra add to the table's formal opulence. Sumptuous silver platters and bowls are polished to a nonce to hold the mouth-watering meal.

The homemaker who tries to vary Thanksgiving's traditional menu is more likely than not to receive protests from her brood. Succulent turkey with all the trimmings is a must. And who could forget pumpkin pie! The food itself provides its own fall color scheme for the table.

Although many hostesses enjoy using colored linen cloths for other meals throughout the year, while somehow seems most right for Thanksgiving. Just a few simple decorative touches are all that's needed to give the table a completed, festive look. Miss Margot Gunther, N.S.I.D., provides them in the traditional tablesetting, through the use of brilliant orange velvet ribbons and natural dried wheat and flowers.

The base of the candelabra is the natural location for a centerpiece, leaving lots of room for the many dishes that will be placed on the table. Miss Gunther recommends building your arrangement on a piece of cardboard that can be slipped into place, rather than working directly on the cloth. This can be done in advance... and not on the busy morning of the big day. The flat arrangement of dried thistles and wheat is casually drawn together with a length of orange ribbon to accent the glittering majesty of Fostoria's 3-candle candelabra.

Golden napkins, folded in thirds and then rolled, are caught with matching ribbon napkin holders and placed on bread and butter plates. An easy way to achieve their crushed antique velvet look is one decorating trick divulged by Miss Gunther. Cut two lengths of ribbon to the right size for the holder (about 9").

KU KLUX KLANSMEN SUPPORT JIM JOHNSON!

Night of the KKK at Star City

The out-of-state Grand Dragon from Louisiana helped burn a 15-foot fiery cross in Star City Saturday night at a political rally. A man identified as Jack Helms, Grand Dragon of the Louisiana Klan said: "The Klan has come out for Lurleen Wallace (in Alabama), Lester Maddox (in Georgia) and Jim Johnson and we're electing them one by one." Also present were two other Grand Dragons and the Imperial Wizard of the United Klans of America... Jim Johnson will carry the Klan, but the chilling question is: "Where will the Klan carry you and your family?"

Klan, at Rally, Talks Politics; Lauds Johnson

Gazette State News Service
STAR CITY — Three grand dragons and the Imperial Wizard of the United Klans of America appeared at a Ku Klux Klan rally Saturday night to talk about politics in the South.

The grand dragon from Louisiana, who identified himself as Jack Helms said, "The Klan has come out for Lurleen Wallace [in Alabama], Lester Maddox [in Georgia] and Jim Johnson and we're electing them one by one."

He also said the people of Arkansas "deserve greetings for bringing the great Jim Johnson to the post he enjoys today."

Johnson is the Democratic nominee for governor. He is running against Republican Winthrop Rockefeller.

When the Klan Rallied To Talk About Politics

About 350 persons attended the Ku Klux Klan rally Saturday night at Star City at which these pictures were taken.

At top left, robed Klansmen surrounded the Klan's symbol—the burning cross. The 15-foot high cross was lighted at the beginning of the rally. Although only 30 to 40 Klansmen in robes attended the meeting, a Klan spokesman said that most of the crowd were Klan members in street clothes.

At top right, a Klan official dons his robe before speaking as two Klan guards in military-type uniforms look on. The grand dragons of the Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas Klans of the United Klans of America spoke at the rally.

Also speaking at the rally was the top man in the United Klans, Imperial Wizard Robert M. Shelton of Tuscaloosa, Ala., shown at left. Shelton, dressed in street clothes, spent most of the rally sitting in his car. Among the speakers' targets were President Johnson, Jews, the civil rights movement and Communists.

Shelton and George A. McNeely of McGehee, the grand dragon of the Arkansas Klan, both declined to endorse any candidate in the Arkansas governor's race.

McNeely said, "If you can't make up your own mind, you should be denied the right of suffrage." The Louisiana grand dragon, however, who identified himself as Jack Helms, said, "The Klan has come out for Lurleen Wallace [in Alabama], Lester Maddox [in Georgia] and Jim Johnson and we're electing them one by one."

Youth Beat

MONEY DOESN'T COUNT, BUT: Here's a look at lifetime earnings you can expect to reap in different kinds of careers. What the economic crystal ball shows today: Doctors, after long years of pre-med, medical school and internship, in the first years of private practice around $20,000 a year. In later years, or as a specialist, up to $35,000. Pharmacists net $7,000 to $10,000 annually. Nurses average around $4,300. Lawyers push through college and stiff law school courses, then average roughly $10,600. . . . but top lawyers pull down astronomical incomes. Engineers start at about $7,500, but with a doctorate get up to $12,500. . . . and many top corporate executives have climbed the ladder from engineering posts. Teachers (lots of jobs available, with more than 2 million class teachers now and more needed. . . . salaries, though, vary greatly from state to state and your particular teaching position) earn $4,500 for an elementary teacher in Arkansas to $14,500 as a nationwide average for a full professor. In business (what you'll earn in business isn't sharply predictable) the floor for salesmen is $100 and the ceiling can soar well over $20,000. . . . if you're good at math, accountants are specialists who do well, starting at $7,000 and, as they rise, frequently pulling in multiples of that.

Field wide open for girls is retailing (total employees here: 10 million), where you can start selling at around $2 an hour, but move up as buyer to as high as $25,000 annually. Social work—it's surprising, but this is beginning to be a pretty well-paid field. . . . earnings of trained social workers jumped in the last 10 years from $4,000 to $8,000. . . . still going up. And if you're handy with machines or tools, skilled craftsmen do well. . . . construction workers, for example, not (weather and work permitting) a healthy average of $170 weekly.

SUPREME HIRSUTE HEARINGS IN D.C.: Solemn in their black robes of justice (and clean-shaven men themselves), potent judges of the U. S. Supreme Court will rule some time during this session on a momentous educational issue. The suit on their docket is this issue: "Can a college insist that students shave their beards and get a haircut?"

EUROPE—THE SOUND IS "AMERICAN": In recent years, popular music mob around the world tended more and more to listen, even to U. S. rhythms, in their own national language on recordings by their own national singing idols. This tide has turned—not only in England, but also in other popular hit countries like Italy, France and Germany where they're currently grabbing records hot off the U. S. music griddle in the English language and starring American acts. Experts close to the beat say it's because a new sound has come into American sound in the last months, a fresh manner and style. . . . our records beat out the beat best of any.

THERE'S A DROP NOW IN DROPOUTS: Among famous dropouts are LBJ (he went back and finished through college), actor George Hamilton (he quit Palm Beach High forever to manage to date LBJ's ghther, Lynda). But the you're starting to stick high school indicates there'll be fewer famous dropouts in the future. The Department of Labor has announced that of the million 16-to-20-year-olds in the labor force at the end of last year, almost 70 per cent were high school graduates. . . . Six years ago only 50 per cent were. Why do youngsters drop out? Economic pressure is actually a minority factor (a quarter of them gave it as their reason). But half of boy dropouts quit because of lack of interest in school. Most teen girls dropped out because of marriage (or pregnancy). One good reason not to drop out: Labor Department figures show unemployment is three times higher for dropouts than for high school graduates. For teen men and almost 2½ times higher for teen girls last year. A last-minute straw poll indicates that dropping out is dropping out has just blown in the Connecticut—where, this year, 88.5 per cent of teens asking for working papers intend to continue high school, while in 1963 only 89 per cent did.

Racial Injustice Against Whites

NO OTHER HUNGER.
By Frederic Mullally, McKay, $4.50.

In a fictional country of south-east Asia, formerly a Dutch colonial possession and now fiercely independent, this adventure novel spins out its tale of racial conflict.

John Schaffer, born in America but experienced in the Far East, is the manager of a disintegrating whites-only club in the capital city of this nation. He is in love with his native mistress, and worried about the deadly maneuvers of the native dictatorship, which is determined to drive out all white survivors of the colonial regime.

Schaffer is thrown into a ghastly jail on framed charges of conspiring with Muslim rebels whom he did not even know.

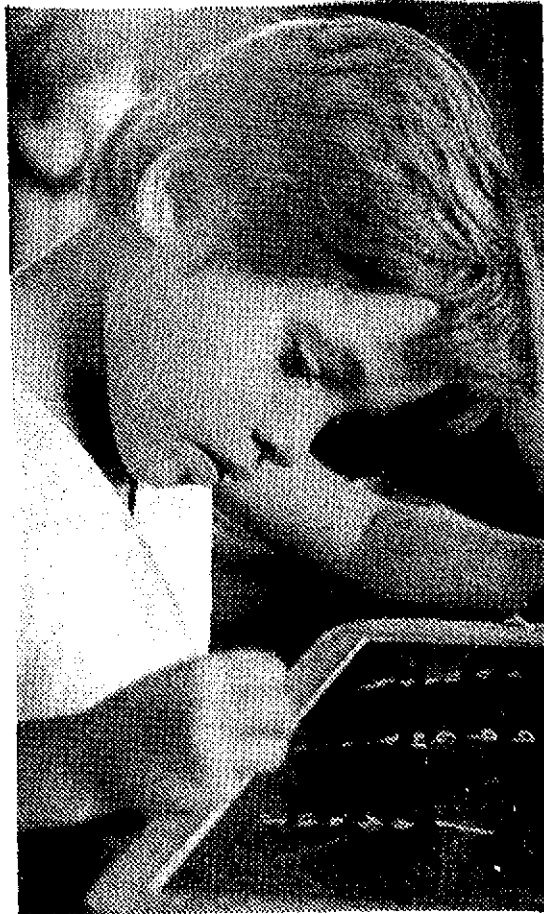

Much of the story is about his horrible imprisonment and his staged trial—in a court where a fair judge is removed and Schaffer's native attorney is murdered.

Schaffer's predicament is relieved by the presence of an unusual woman of the foreign colony, who has qualified herself in native law and assumes his defense in the closing part of the trial.

It is all very melodramatic, and full of atmosphere and dashing gunfire at the end. Of course this isn't a literary novel. It's really a bang-bang movie story.

U.N. CHILDREN

One of the lucky ones, a Colombian boy is absorbed in his school work. A severe shortage of qualified teachers and rapid growth of the population in Colombia keep the percentage of children enrolled in school low. UNESCO is aiding the government in attacking the problem. A four-year plan to improve primary education is under way.

For two decades a special organization, UNESCO, the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, has been laboring on behalf of a very special group—the world's children. U.N. aid is proving invaluable to many countries battling age-old enemies—illness and illiteracy. Here are some of the children throughout the world whose lot is being bettered through UNESCO's efforts.

In Ecuador, an Indian girl gives her little brother a lift. Their future is brighter as a result of rural child health centers set up with U.N. aid.

Three Venezuelan boys on a burro, riding to school and toward a better future as a result of the efforts of Fipan, an organization of Venezuelan voluntary groups aided by UNESCO in helping the nation's youth through a variety of programs.

Not so lucky—yet, an Afghan lad learns metal working instead of attending school. But UNESCO is aiding expansion of Afghanistan's school system. The goal is free primary education for all.

Marks vs. Pass/Fail

By PHILIP WERDELL
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — It's not new. The old "experiment" colleges like Antioch and Sarah Lawrence have been doing it for decades. But now the Ivy League, prestige state universities and soon, possibly, every college will be doing it.

Doing what? Eliminating grades.

It is almost an educational fad. It's called Pass/Fail. It means that more and more students will not receive number or letter grades.

Last year Princeton University gave the innovation credentials. Upperclassmen were allowed to take two courses purely on a Pass/Fail basis. The official reason was that "students would be more likely to choose elective courses in which they are very interested but do not yet feel completely qualified." It was felt, moreover, that students often overlook such courses for fear of damaging their total grade average.

"Pass/Fail has its greatest appeal, I think, when you have a serious student who wants to go outside his field, a physics student who wants to take an art history course," says Chancellor Heynes of the University of California at Berkeley. He added, "Now, if Princeton can do that, certainly we can do it here."

Administrators at a number of other colleges and universities said the same thing.

This fall 900 students enrolled in Pass/Fail courses at the University of Pennsylvania. Similar undergraduate approval has been found for new Pass/Fail programs at Columbia University, Cornell University, Brown University, Mount Holyoke College and the University of Hawaii.

Most of the new Pass/Fail programs this year are limited to one or two elective courses (subjects outside of a student's major). Usually, only juniors and seniors are qualified.

Every indication to date is that the selective Pass/Fail programs will not affect a student's Selective Service deferment or his chances of getting into graduate school or a career. Student response to the innovation indicates they are taking more risky courses.

A few colleges and universities are using the Pass/Fail grading system on a much grander scale.

California Institute of Technology gives only Pass/Fail evaluations to ALL freshmen. At Lehigh University juniors and seniors can take as many as four of their five courses on a Pass/Fail basis. In the small experimental Tussman Program at Berkeley all courses for all four years are on a Pass/Fail grading system.

Although more colleges and universities seem to be adopting the Pass/Fail system every week, there is still some opposition.

"Two problems are immediately raised. First, how can you reward the outstanding student, and secondly, if it is adopted only here and there, the student will be penalized if he desires to transfer to another school," argues Dr. Paul W. Eberman, dean of the College of Education at Temple University.

Heynes raises another problem: "Many students themselves desire more precise evaluation of their work. They want to find out where they really stand."

At Wake Forest College students were polled to find out whether they favored Pass/Fail evaluations. The student newspaper reported, "The opinion was that the Pass/Fail system would be good only if it were adopted nationwide. Otherwise, the problems of transferring and getting into graduate school would be too great."

Nationwide acceptance of Pass/Fail is no longer an impossibility, however. If colleges and universities continue to reform the old grading system, students might be under less pressure to play the numbers game.

They Can't Go Home Again

By ROGER RAPOPORT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

TORONTO — (NEA) — This month about 50,000 men will be inducted into the U.S. armed forces. Bob Thomas will not be among them.

It's not that Bob isn't eligible—he has been 1-A for the past five months. Rather, he has left his native Indiana to live here in Canada where American draft laws do not apply. He is an expatriate.

Bob (not his real name) is one of a growing number of Americans—estimated at 2, modern Ontario provincial capital of nearly two million

Aside from their determination to escape military service and the warm reception they are getting in Canada, the draft dodgers have little in common.

They are a surprisingly disparate group, ranging from Bob, an outspoken left-wing radical, to Harry, a right-wing conservative from Arizona. Regardless of the draft dodgers' backgrounds or political beliefs, the Canadians seem determined to help them out.

For his part Bob finds Canada "far more relaxed and less hysterical" than the United States. A cum laude English graduate of a top Ivy League school last June, he returned home to find 1-A greetings from his local draft board.

Bob had no intention of following in the footsteps of his 18-year-old brother who joined the Air Force in April. "My brother and I gave up discussing Viet Nam. It's useless," he says.)

He carefully weighed alternative means of avoiding the draft. Bob is not a pacifist or a conscientious objector. "I think C.O. status is demeaning," says Bom. "I have no intention of co-operating with the military system in any way."

The other route was jail—up to five years and $10,000 for failing to report for induction. "But that wouldn't have done anyone any good," he explains. "I see no reason to make a martyr of myself."

So he decided the only way out was north. He told his father who was dismayed and his mother who "cried a lot." When he arrived here in June, Tony Hyde of the Student Union for Peace Action, a Canadian affiliate of Students for a Democratic Society, found him lodging.

Bob took a job at the University of Toronto library and applied for landed-immigrant status (a prerequisite to Canadian citizenship) to remain legally in Canada.

Tony Hyde

000 during the past two years—emigrating to Canada to escape the draft. About 400 to 500 have settled in this it hard to move with the times.

For example, he still insists upon heading both the government and the Communist party. In Poland, Hungary, Romania and Czechoslovakia these jobs are split between two men, the real power being the party first secretary.

On the other hand, Zhivkov is passing up party stalwarts in order to promote technocrat-minded younger men for important jobs.

Thanks to his liberal economic policy, Bulgaria now has the highest growth rate (15 per cent) of any Iron Curtain country. Bulgaria is two years up on technically advanced Czechoslovakia when it comes to introducing the so-called new economic management reforms.

Tourism has become one of the main sources of hard currency to finance such purchases as Bulgaria makes in the West, notably from West Germany. The number of foreign visitors to Bulgaria is expected to total 1.5 million this year, which is triple the number in 1963.

These tourists will have left behind them $40 million, according to present estimates. This is still only one-third of the intake of Yugoslavia, but the trend is on the upgrade.

More important still is the influence these tourists are having on the Bulgarian people. More than half of this year's visitors came from the West, and already their impact is seen in Western hair styles, clothes, musical tastes, etc.

Todor Zhivkov and his Communist colleagues are striving to hold the Western influence in check. Bulgaria is the only Iron Curtain country which still jams Voice of America broadcasts. Western periodicals are not allowed to be sold here in Sofia. But in time these restrictions are expected to meet the fate they have met elsewhere in Eastern Europe.

Ordinary gum-chewing, tooth-sore sightseers are doing more to break down barriers here in Bulgaria than all the Voice of America broadcasts combined could do. Who knows when, at some future date, Bulgarians will nod their heads yes and may actually mean yes?

WHERE ARE THE LEADING MEN

NEW YORK (AP) — Leading ladies are having trouble finding leading men on Broadway this season.

Sandy Dennis was to appear in a comedy "Daphne in Cottage D" but the venture had to be postponed until next spring because of inability to locate a satisfactory vis-a-vis. For the same reason, Inga Swenson's commitment to "Possibilities (And's Life)," a drama, has been deferred until next season.

EXPATRIATE BOB THOMAS reads "Rebel in Paradise" at his rented Toronto home.

Except for the fact that he can't go home again (where he would face that five-year jail sentence and fine) Bob's life is free of restrictions. A long-standing pact between the American and Canadian governments prohibits his extradition. Canada has no draft which makes the country "far more relaxed than the United States" according to Bob.

Predictably, Bob's attitude toward the United States is a bitter one. "From up here," he claims, "America really looks like it's going nuts." He goes so far as to articulate a claim that America is "on its way to a collective nervous breakdown."

Still, Bob contends that his decision to move to Canada was not motivated by the dire course he feels America is on.

"Personal freedom is the reason I came up here. I want to have the right to say 'no' to people. I've got better things to do than be used like a robot killer dog in the Army. No one has the right to tell me to go drop napalm on people. I want to run my own life."

Canadian Tony Hyde doesn't think Bob Thomas is typical. "I don't think there is any such thing as a typical draft dodger," he says.

"We're finding all kinds of kids coming up here. Many of these kids are nonpolitical types who never got involved in protest activities back in the States. For many, coming up here is their first political act."

Hyde says his group doesn't openly solicit draft dodgers. "We make no move to get people to come here," he points out. However, the group has published a pamphlet called "Coming to Canada?" for Americans concerned about the possibility of being drafted.

Spears Its Fish
The American snakebird, a member of the cormorant family, feeds on fish which it chases and spears with its daggerlike bill. Its underwater agility is amazing, and it often swims with only its head above water, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

SOFIA, BULGARIA (NEA) — When it comes to head-nodding, yes means no and no means yes in Communist Bulgaria. This head-shaking confusion seems to run right through every phase of Bulgarian life.

Take tourism, for example. The Bulgarians have gone to a lot of expense to attract tourists to the Black Sea coast. New seaside resorts with improbable names like Golden Sands and Sunny Beach have sprung up overnight, complete with modern hotels, night clubs, open air cinemas, paddle pools for the kiddies.

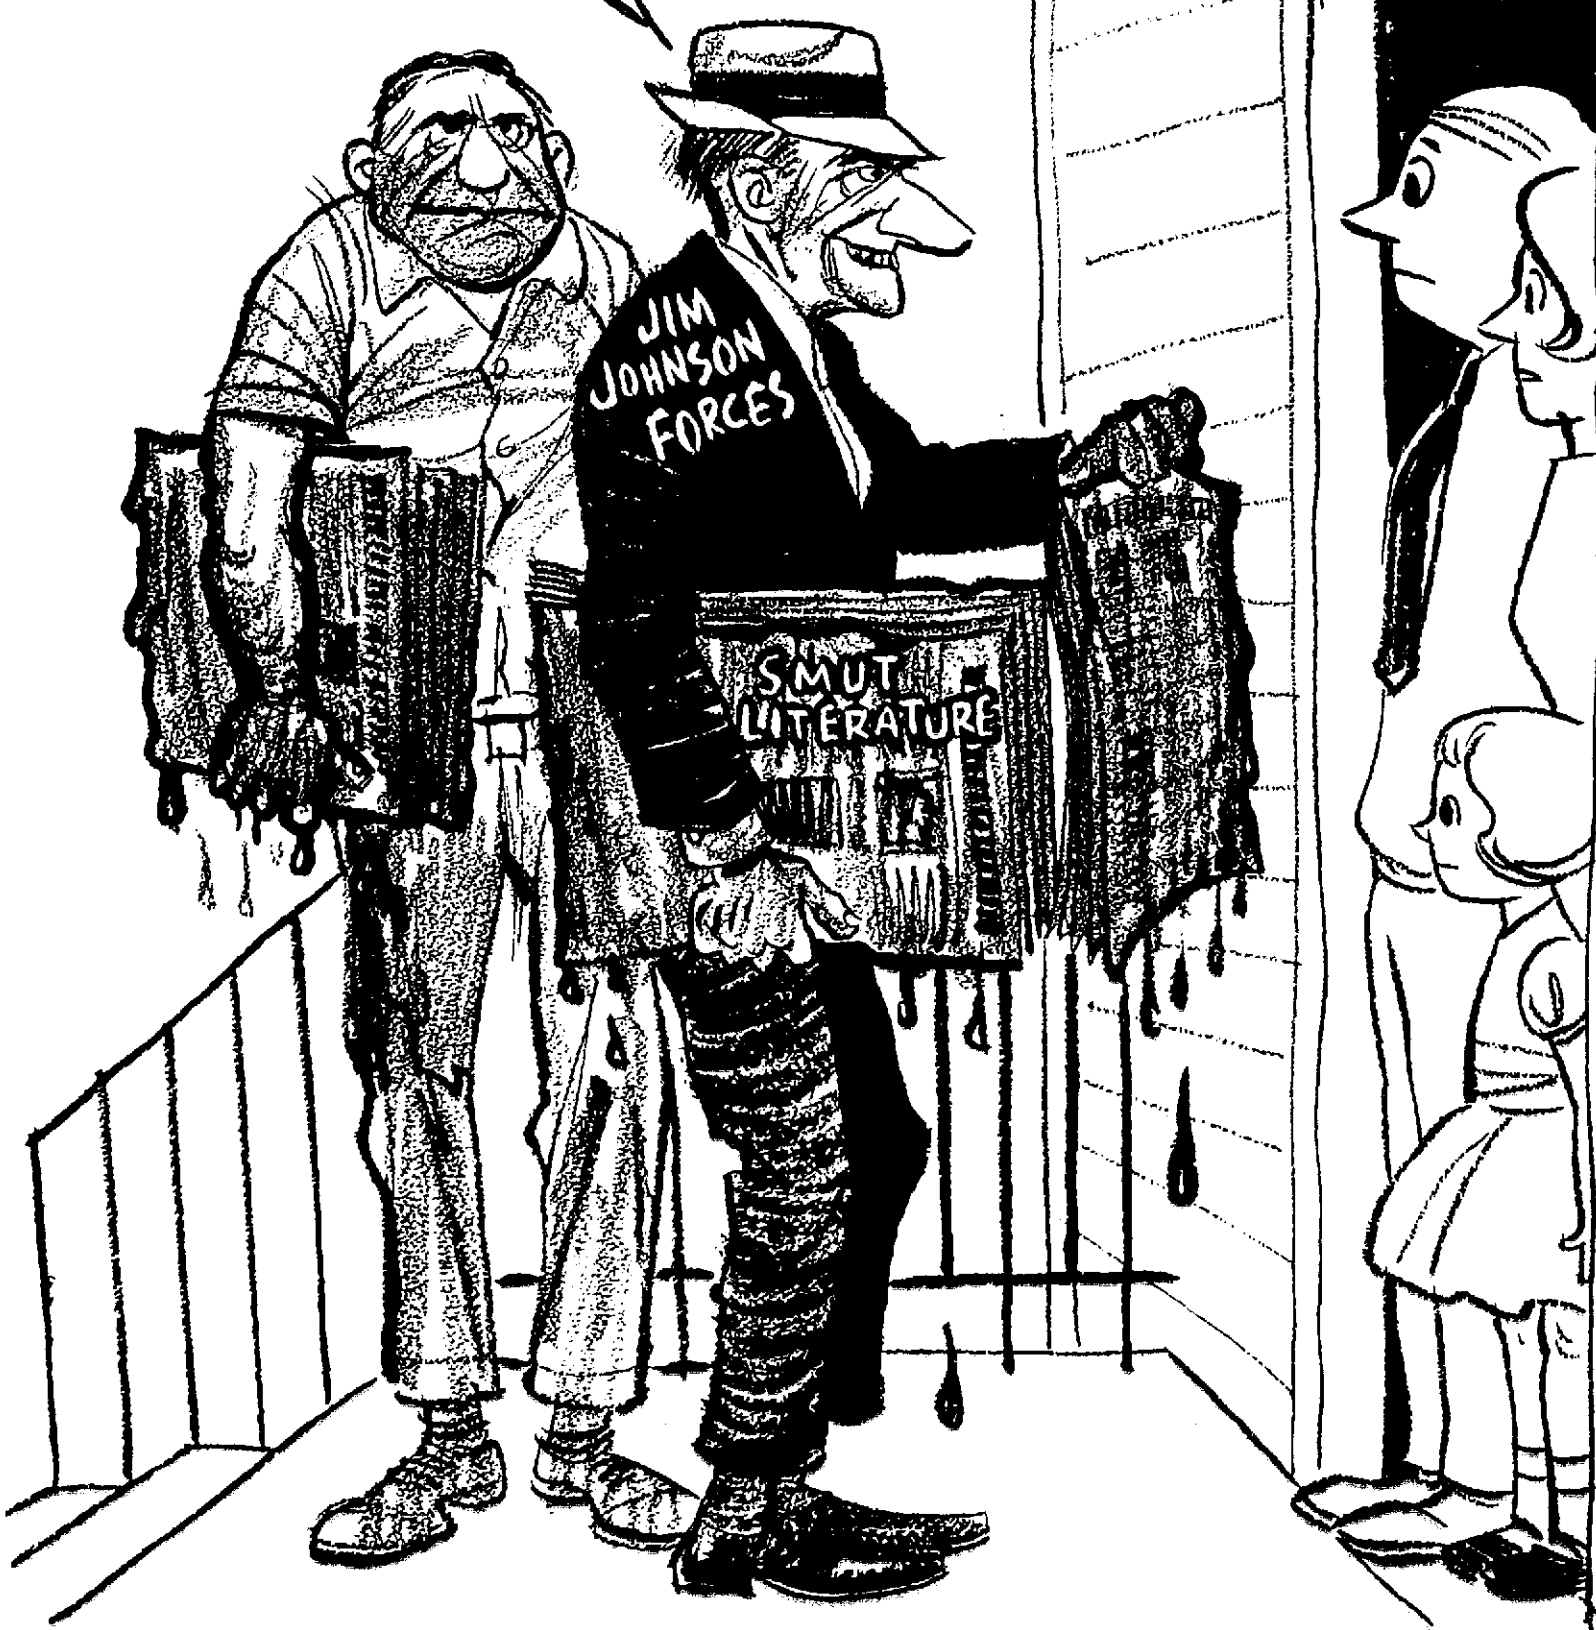

At the same time, Bulgaria's schizophrenic government sees fit to warn the populace against visiting foreigners. The American businessman-type who is busy photographing the girls in their bikinis on Golden Sands beach is obviously a CIA agent, the public is told. Nor is this the only example of Communist confusion. At a time when the other Eastern European countries, notably Romania, are asserting their independence, Bulgaria, with a population of 8 million, still remains firmly tied to Russia. It is the most Soviet of all the satellite states. The Russian influence is evident in everything from the architecture of Sofia's main buildings (Stalin Gothic) to the compulsory teaching of the Russian language in Bulgarian schools.

As a reminder that the personality cult is not entirely dead there is the tomb, here in Sofia, of Georgi Dimitrov, founder of the Bulgarian People's Republic, who lies embalmed in a blue serge suit in a temple specially built for him. His tomb is guarded by soldiers 24 hours daily, and at night it is floodlit by a hideous green light.

A minor personality cult has grown up around Todor Zhivkov, Dimitrov's successor and Bulgaria's present-day Communist boss, whose photo is displayed in shop windows. A protégé of Khrushchev, Zhivkov, who is 55, has found

DIAL THE WORLD

It's only a long-distance goal as yet, but men who plot the future of telephone communications are already looking to the day when it will be possible to dial any place in the world without going through an operator. A start already has been made. The first direct call to Europe—from Philadelphia to Geneva, Switzerland—was made last June 15 and U.S. telephone officials now propose a limited trial linking New York City and selected European cities, possibly to start as early as next year. For the eventual worldwide system, agreement already has been reached on a numbering plan which would set a maximum of 12 digits for every telephone in the world. Newsmap shows area code numbers already assigned to the world's continents. Eventual worldwide all-number dialing will eliminate confusing differences among countries in present dial arrangements, as shown below.

Astronauts' Subway to Safety

By TOM TIEDE

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

CAPE KENNEDY, FLA.—It is midsummer of 1969 and America's massive moonship, the Saturn V, is standing on the launch pad. Three astronauts are strapped in a frightening message. "Abandon! The rocket is going to explode!"

What do they do? They go down the tube.

Happily, however, the tube is part of what space safety people deem the "emergency green" system. Moon shot officials call it the "earth chute" and believe that, in case of trouble, it will become the astronaut's subway to safety.

Nobody expects trouble with the 6.1-million-pound Saturn, of course, but it may occur, anyway. And with the equivalent of 600 tons of TNT aboard, a leak or a spark could ignite what would amount to the blast of a small nuclear bomb.

Thus the tube.

Actually, this conduit is part of an overall escape maneuver which would be initiated if the need arose. If, during a launching of the vehicle, a computer detected a serious error in the operation—especially one that might cause an explosion—the mission would be abandoned and egress activity instantly begun.

Immediately, the crew would be notified of the situation. Likely, they would receive a verbal command to generally run for their lives.

In 37 seconds the launch vehicle's retracted access arm (bridge) would swing back out the rocketship's passenger capsule. Hopefully, by the time it locked into position the three astronauts would be strapped, unhinged and waiting to flee.

They would then cross the access arm to a high speed elevator poised in the framework of the tower. The elevator in such an emergency would transport the crew on a breathless descent at 160 yards per minute or eight feet a second.

Once down, the men would leap into the opening of the tube, a four-foot-thick, stainless steel affair which twists along the launch pad and disappears into the sod.

The chute naturally is slick as a glass mountain. Much of it is coated with Teflon (just like the nonstick frying pans) and free of all imperfections. The crew, like logs in a lumber flume, would slide wildly to the ground.

Ten feet... Fifty feet... In all, a 170-foot seat-of-the-pants sojourn.

At tube's end several alternating layers of frictional material would act to decelerate the slide and the crew members would tumble out onto a rubber floor which is surrounded by rubber walls and covered with a rubber ceiling.

Finally, they'd enter a foot-thick steel door, take seats in six-inch-thick sponge chairs and wait out the rocket explosion in a coil-mounted, shock-proof room which is equipped with enough food and water to last 48 hours.

Total time elapsed—less than four minutes.

Is it enough? It depends. Cape experts say that a successful egress would depend on early detection and early warning of a launch vehicle explosion.

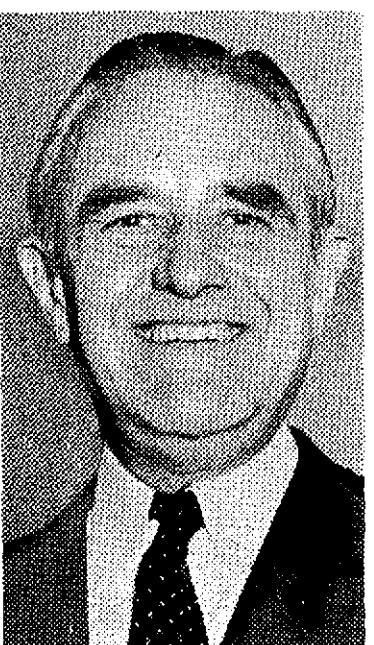

At the very least, they figure, the moon crew would have three minutes grace in which to slide the over 500-foot distance to underground security.

And if there was no warning at all?

There is little talk here of such things. But there is one gag sign that sums up the situation. Hanging in the shadow of the 362-foot-tall Saturn, it reads:

"Everybody please keep their fingers crossed."

Dean Martin Joins Million-a-Film Set

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) DOTLOOSE AND FANCY FREEWAY—Chad Everett is in "Pistolero," filming action scenes in Tucson, with Glenn Ford and Angie Dickinson. Chad's wife, Shelby Grant, went with him to the location, and they found they were assigned to the same hotel where they had honeymooned a few months ago.

Sidney Lumet plans to make a film version of Chekhov's "The Cherry Orchard" in Russia next summer. Simone Signoret has agreed to take one of the major roles. Maximilian Schell will try his hand at directing, selecting Kafka's "The Castle" for his debut. He wants either Julie Christie or Carroll Baker for the female lead. Somebody asked Woody Allen if, now that he's a success, money had changed him. "Yes," said Woody. "It has made me wealthier." Another million-per-picture actor—Dean Martin. At least that's what insiders figure. A percentage of "Texas Across the River" amount to.

Small, legitimate theaters keep popping all over Los Angeles, which has suddenly become legit-crazy.

I saw two fascinating productions in one week—done by two very professional groups. For's Theater, working in Beverly Hills, is doing a trio of Arthur Miller plays. I saw "Incident At Vichy," done with great feeling by a cast headed by John Dehner and Booth Colman. And then I saw "The Royal Hunt of the Sun," performed by Theatre East in a 60-seat house over a bowling alley in Studio City. The group (and this is the group Adam West used to work with before he struck it rich) did wonders in the tiny theater. The standout performances were by Roger Perry and Thomas Bellin.

Universal is building one of the largest and most complicated sets of recent years for the coming swashbuckler, "The King's Pirate," which will star Jill St. John, Doug McClure and Guy Stockwell.

The set is a ship—two sections which come to an overall length of 155 feet. No sound stage is big enough to accommodate it, so Stage 12 will have a canvas annex at one end to cover the part that sticks out.

A pretty blonde named Carol Andreson (her real name is Anderson, but there already was a Carol Anderson, so she changed the spelling) is turning heads on the set of "Rough Night in Jericho."

Carol is unique—she's a registered nurse and, in fact, played a nurse on Dr. Kildare for many episodes. She still takes private cases between acting parts.

One doctor called her while she was doing "Jericho" and asked her to take a case but, of course, she couldn't.

Werner Klemperer's father, 81-year-old conductor Otto Klemperer, is not much of a television viewer.

"And he really doesn't understand the medium," Werner says. "When I first wrote him—he lives in Switzerland—that I had a part in a series called Hogan's Heroes, his first question to me was, 'Who is the author?' He expected someone like Shaw. I imagine."

"Last Spring, I took two episodes with me and had them screened for him at a TV station in Zurich. He watched attentively. Afterwards, his comment was, 'Before I leave this world, I would like to see you in something pleasant.'"

PROTECT YOUR DOG

FROM "DOGNAPPERS"

"Dognapping" is a relatively new word in the English language. But the practice it describes is old and well-established, and its practitioners are bold and ruthless. Their next victim may be your pet, but your care and vigilance can save his life.

In earlier times, most pet-stealing was for a ransom. As New York columnist Harriet Van Horne recently wrote: "The last case of dognapping to create a stir was the snatching of Elizabeth Barrett's spaniel, Flush, on the streets of London in September, 1846... and then the stir was confined largely to the Barrett-Browning circle." The "best-bred cocker in Wimpole Street" was ransomed for six guineas (about $30 at the time) and sent home in deplorable condition. He was dirty, emaciated and terrified, but he was in time to accompany his mistress on her elopement.

Today's stolen pets rarely fare as well, for they may be illicitly sold to medical research laboratories instead of being offered to their owners for ransom.

When the weather is pleasant, owners are more likely to let their pets run loose in the neighborhood. And travellers leave their dogs alone in their cars. In Fall, many hunting dogs who did not "work out" are turned out. Business picks up for the cruel thieves who operate in organized rings to steal beloved pets for sale far from home.

The dog thief may strike quickly in a neighborhood, taking several dogs to a hideout and then transporting them in a closed truck to another state almost before owners become aware of what has happened, thinking their dogs have only strayed away from home.

The dogs may be sold with false papers—or promises to send papers later—to unsuspecting persons. Or they may be sold to people who do not ask questions....

Fighting Cats Easily Roll Over Warren

By Larry Don Wright
Hope Star Sports Writer

A triumphant cry of "timber" rang out from the Hope cheering section last night as the once powerful Warren Lumberjacks fell to an onslaught of Bobcat scoring and Hope rounded out their District 4AA schedule with a 34-14 win.

Everything functioned flawlessly for the Bobcats who by halftime had rolled up an impressive 27-0 advantage en route to their most effective offensive performance of the year.

However, an equal amount of credit can be given to the stingy Hope defensive unit which held the Jacks through the first half to a mere 41 yards total offense while intercepting two passes and swiping two fumbles. By intermission between halves the contest had become such an obviously one-sided affair that the Bobcats subs played most of the second half both on offense and defense.

It was questionable prior to the game whether or not the Bobcats, who had shown first life since early in the year with a win last week, would be able to retain their momentum from the previous week. But any doubts as to this were banished in the opening minute of play.

The Lumberjacks took the opening kickoff but were unable to budge and the Bobcats took over from scrimmage at their own 37 following the Warren punt. Sizeable gains by wingback Freddie Easterling and halfback Jerry Don McWilliams, spearheaded the Bobcat assault into Warren territory.

The scoring march covered 63 yards in nine plays as McWilliams sped in from eight yards out to chalk up the initial score of the night. End Luther Shaw kicked the PAT to give the Bobcats a 7-0 lead with 6:23 still left in the first quarter.

When the Lumberjacks got their chance they again found the Hope defense too much for them. Linebackers Easterling and Mickey Allen shot the gap on a crucial third down play to drop Warren quarterback, Robert Dew for a six yard loss. This red-dogging technique which the Cats employed on numerous occasions throughout the game met with great success as it kept both Dew, ably talented runner, and the entire Lumberjack offensive threat in a hole.

The Bobcats took over at the Hope 45 following the Warren punt. On the first down play Easterling broke off left tackle for the full 35 yards as he just outraced the Lumberjacks secondary to the end zone. Shaw's boot put the Cats out front 14-0.

Following the kickoff the Jacks tried to get something started as they moved from their own 20 out to the Hope 41 yard line. But from that point on third down Bobcat tackle John Henley stretched high into the air to grab a low-thrown Dew aerial and give the Cats a first down at their own 39.

Four plays later Easterling scampered into the end zone for another Hope tally only to have it recalled due to a holding infraction against the Cats.

However, the penalty only delayed the score as McWilliams got the call three plays later to add six more points on a 2-yard run. Shaw kicked the extra point again to give the Cats a margin of 21-0 at 11:17 remaining in the first half.

With a first down at the 43 Dew went to the air but his hopes were again spoiled, this time by All-district Stan Parris. Parris intercepted the pass at the Warren 44 and returned it 18 yards before finally being brought down.

Only penalties kept the Bobcats from scoring again in this situation, as the Cats had to resort to a field goal attempt from the 30. However, Shaw's effort at what would have been a 40-yard field goal was short and Warren took over at their own 20.

On their first play, though, Shaw made amends for his misadventure by kicking a 34-yard field goal in midair and giving Hope possession at the 19. Easterling carried first for 13 yards and then the remaining six to the points, to put Hope ahead convincingly 27-0 at halftime.

Immediately following the second half kickoff the Hope, Bobcat Lumberjacks recovered a Bobcat fumble deep in the visitors territory. On third down Dew connected to halfback Sammy Roberts on a 38 yard pass for the Jacks' first points of the night. Roberts converted and the gap was narrowed 27-7.

But the Bobcats crushed any hopes the Lumberjacks might have entertained of a comeback on their next possession by marching 65 yards for another touchdown. The entire Bobcat backfield played essential roles in the drive as all four Hope runners chalked up big gains.

Allen carried for important gains of 3, 4, 2 and 1 yards. Easterling took the call for 4, 5, and 4 yard carries and McWilliams sprinted for 9, 8, and 7 yards. Quarterback Buzz Andrews rolled right end for the TD as he twisted into the scoring column from the 8 yard line. Shaw added Hope's final point of the night as the Cats led 34-7 with 1:18 left in the third stanza.

The Lumberjacks did penetrate through the Bobcat second team defense for one more score early in the final chapter of play by driving 68 yards in six plays. Roberts carried the last yard for the points and also added the extra point. The final score was 34-14 and that was determined with 10 minutes left in the game as the subs played the last quarter.

Shaw racked up the most defensive points to gain the title of "head butcher" but he was supported in full by the whole Bobcat defense.

Easterling was the leading ground gainer for Hope with 140 yards in 11 carries. He was the best ground gainer last week. McWilliams was not far behind with 104 for 15 trips. Allen took the ball 10 times for 34 yards and Andrews made 31 in eight tries while Massanelli was 2 for 4.

Astronauts to Orange Bowl
MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Two U.S. astronauts, L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr., were named today as the first entries in the 1967 Orange Bowl regatta's "250" speed classic Jan. 1.

The 279-mile race at Miami's Orange Bowl stadium will have prizes totaling $19,000.

$100 Prizes for Turkey Shoot Sun.

Local Merchants have already donated over $100.00 worth of merchandise for the Hempstead Skeet Club's Turkey shoot this Sunday afternoon. The Club anticipates having over $200.00 worth of prizes to be given away at the shoot.

Shooters may shoot for a Turkey key or for a piece of merchandise. The number of shooters in a squad will determine how valuable the prize may be and in some cases the shooting fee will determine the prize. For example, a more valuable prize will be given to a shooter winning a 10-man squad event than to one winning a 5-man event, or a $1.00 fee will bring a more valuable prize than a 50c fee. Also, shooters may defer taking a small item and accumulate points in order to get a prize of greater value.

The Club will have several shooting games, but will play a shooting game that a squad of at least 5 men should agree upon. Local merchants that have contributed to the $100.00 worth of prizes already received by the Club are Winemiller's Grocery, Oklahoma Tire and Supply, Coca Cola Bottling Co., Hope Beverage Co., Hope Hardware Co., Overturn's Shoe Store, Foster's Shoe Store, Herbert Burns Men's Wear, Sherwin Williams Store, Western Auto Co., Collier Furniture and Appliance, Allen's DX Service, J. A. West and Co., Barry's Grocery, Town and Country Restaurant.

Names of other donors will be released to the press as soon as these merchants are contacted. Some very nice merchandise has already been donated and all these prizes will be given away at the shoot, so the chance of winning are good for any shooter.

LBJ's Pace Left Him Tired, Worn

EDITOR'S NOTE — The following story by Lewis Gulick, an Associated Press writer who accompanied President Johnson on his Asian trip, gives a reporter's impression of the President's physical condition then against the background of the announcement that he will undergo surgery.

By LEWIS GULICK
WASHINGTON (AP) — "He sure looks old and tired," commented a GI at Cam Ranh Bay who said this was his first look at President Johnson in person.

But this reporter did not think then, or in retrospect following announcement of his scheduled surgery, that the President showed more strain than might be expected from such a fast and strenuous trip halfway across the world and back.

Some newsmen far younger than the 58-old President looked as if they felt older and more tired than he.

For it was a punishing schedule: 31,500 miles in 17 days, through seven Far Eastern countries plus stops at Hawaii, Pago Pago and Alaska.

There were rapid time zone changes upsetting the body's clock, climate changes from Bangkok's 90 degrees to the slush-snow of Anchorage, food changes, daily tour activities that sometimes ran virtually from dawn to midnight plus presidential work brought from Washington.

Johnson says he needs only about five hours sleep a night. In Washington, he usually is able to supplement this with an afternoon nap.

But often during the trip he got no time for a midday rest. As the tour went on, after he left the Philippines' Manila summit conference, he trimmed the burden a bit by cutting some briefing sessions.

Like many others on the trip, Johnson caught a head cold. His voice sometimes sounded hoarse.

Hoarseness was nothing new for him, however. He has battled hoarseness often since he became President, especially during speechmaking swings around the United States.

George Sanders Files Bankruptcy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor George Sanders has filed a bankruptcy petition listing nearly $1 million in liabilities. He says he was the victim of an "international swindle."

Sanders said in Los Angeles Thursday he lost his money as a shareholder in an investment company building food-processing factories in Scotland. He said he signed bank guarantees for $1.25 million.

Sanders, 60, listed assets of $57,557 and said he paid $360,000 into the defunct company.

Letters to the Editor

THE CAMPAIGN

Editor The Star: We feel compelled to write to the Star because we feel so strongly about this critical November 8 election. First of all we urge everyone to vote. No one has the right or privilege of criticizing our government—federal or state—if he has not taken the trouble to vote his convictions.

We feel that Arkansas is at the crossroads. It's a simple choice—are we to go forward or backward? Let's look at the choice we have for governor. Contrast the two men.

Mr. Johnson offers no words. Mr. Rockefeller offers work. Mr. Rockefeller has made a thorough study of Arkansas' most pressing problems, namely, education (Arkansas ranks 48th in the nation), roads (have you taken a trip lately?), need for more and higher paying jobs (Mr. Rockefeller got more industries to come to out state than any other man in Arkansas, including our present governor, agriculture (Mr. Rockefeller is a rancher, Mr. Johnson is a professional politician), Mr. Rockefeller means progress and prosperity, Mr. Johnson says he is "agin" a lot of things, but what is he for? Mr. Rockefeller has said he is for a four year term for governor. We have the feeling that Mr. Johnson would stay in as long as the taxpayers would support him.

And let us point out something else, Mr. Rockefeller is a Christian. He was raised in the Baptist faith. If you have ever had the pleasure of visiting Winrock Farms you will find this scripture on a tablet in the mountainside: "And what doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" Micah 6:8 This has been Mr. Rockefeller's guide for his life, but he has not gone around parading the fact and using this as part of his campaign.

We think it is of vital concern to most taxpayers that they get the most back for their tax money possible. Since Mr. Faubus is now supporting Mr. Johnson, we feel a Johnson administration would be similar to a Faubus one: the few politicians that are "in" get the favors. Take for example the State Democratic campaign manager, Joe Basore, he got "in" with the Faubus machine, so the state paved a private road all the way through Cherokee Village for him. Think of the favors Mr. Van Dalsem got: just a few, like state roads to his farm, convicts to cook for his deer camp, etc.

Mr. Rockefeller is not beholden to any man, and he has made no promises to anybody.

We feel that the time has come for the good people of Arkansas to stand up and be counted. We are tired of Arkansas being a poor state, a backward state and ranking behind other states in everything. We want the best possible government for our state that is available. We have that opportunity this November 8th. Vote with us for Win Rockefeller.

Editor The Star: Some years ago I had the privilege of living in that wonderful land where they grow the largest and best water-melons in the nation. We were members of Garrett Memorial Baptist Church, hence I feel an interest in the race for Governor of the "The Wonder State", with the largest peach orchid; the largest spring and the only diamond mine in our nation.

I am visiting in Memphis with my son Phil (who is front page Make-Up man on Press-Semitar) and the Commercial Appeal has so much news of Arkansas, The Ft. Worth papers seldom mention, except your great Football Team.

The race for Governor is more than a political race. It is a Moral issue. No man running for Governor against Mr. Johnson, like his brother, Governor of New York, has been married, divorced and remarried, all contrary to the teaching of the New Testament.

When Money and Morals are weighed, Morals always outweighs Money. Therefore, I feel sure that every Christian, and especially Baptist will go to the polls and vote against having a divorcee for Governor. Stand by God's Book and God will stand by you.

Yours, for the Bible, without addition, subtraction or alteration.

Editor The Star: Those voters of the 3rd. Arkansas district who are concerned about inflation, wasteful spending of federal tax money, for sure increase in taxes and the ballooning federal debt, should study the voting record of Cong. Trimble.

During the 89th. Congress, beginning in February 1966 thru August 9th., there have been 15 roll call votes involving spending of your tax dollars, including such things as $9,500,000.00 for a trade fair in Dade County, Florida, $200,000,000.00 for an Asian Development Bank, $750,000.00 for a mansion for the Vice-President and $4,000,000.00 to subsidize an Alaskan celebration.

Cong Trimble did not vote against even one of these 15 spending measures.

During the same period, there were 6 roll call votes on motions to re-commit resolutions to reduce the amount of federal spending which would have saved the taxpayer a little money, and on all 6 roll calls Cong. Trimble voted against the economy measures.

For 21 out of 21 roll calls, Cong. Trimble was in favor of spending your tax money, and never once voted to economize in federal spending. Very truly yours,

Editor The Star: I travel over the state and spend one night a month in Hope. It was my pleasure to read your recent editorial about the Arkansas Gazette and politics. You are so right! The Arkansas Gazette sits on its hands and lets good men get beat, and then waits about how stupid the voters are.

I was told by the motel operator where I stay that you are not much better. Hope has furnished Arkansas some distinguished men like Ed McCaddin, Kelly Bryant, Lyle Brown and James Pilkinton. If my information is correct, the Hope Star didn't endorse any of them until after they were elected, or nominated. Right now we are strong for Judge Pilkinton here in Little Rock, but wonder if your paper is supporting him? I don't believe it did prior to the summer primaries for if I remember correctly you supported Basore against your home town man, and only came out for Pilkinton after the professional politicians tried, but failed, to keep him out of the run-off. Yours very truly,

I would mail you this rejoinder but you didn't give your Little Rock street address, and the 1966 Little Rock telephone directory doesn't list you. — A.H. Washburn, ed. & pub.

$1.2 Million Grant to Spa

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Housing and Urban Development approved Thursday a $1.2 million grant to help Hot Springs, Ark., construct a water development project. Rep. J. W. Trimble, D-Ark., said construction would start in about three months and require 15 months to complete.

Two Grade School Games Sat.

Two Grade School Football games will be played at Legion Baseball Field Saturday night. At 6:30, Hope Auto's Whites will play Roy Anderson's Reds and at 7:45, James Motor's Blues will take on Young Chevrolet's Golds.

The Grade schoolers are going into the final round of play and any game can decide the championship. Hope Auto, previously undefeated, was dropped by Young Chevrolet last Saturday night. The Gold Team really put the stopper on the Whites power offense to stop them 13 to 0. In the second game, Roy Anderson's gave the tough James Motor Co. team all they wanted for four quarters and suddenly the league has become very well balanced.

The league was reorganized this year in a move to provide better equipment and coaching for the "Little Guys." Sponsors were secured to provide money for game jerseys.

Most players have been provided with suitable equipment by their parents, but there are still many deserving youngsters that would not have been able to play without the support of the League. Feeling that these children deserved the right to be properly protected, the league has provided helmets, shoulder pads, pants, and other miscellaneous equipment for a number of players.

On October 12th, beginning at 6:45, all four Grade School Teams will participate in a couple of games in an effort to raise money for the cost of this equipment. Since the cost of suiting up one player in almost $25.00, League officials will be endeavoring to raise at least $200.00 on this special night. A special fund raising night was held a couple of years ago and local Football fans responded in an excellent manner to cover the cost of equipment used for the league.

The teams are playing football this year and officials want to see some real "hitting" they certainly should turn out games this Saturday and on Saturday night.

There will be no admission charge. Donations will be taken by passing the hat.

Come on out and watch the games and help some underprivileged child. It's much better to see these boys on the football field than on the street.

On the 12th, the Golds and Reds will play at 6:45 and Whites and Blues at 8:00.

Hubby Reportedly to Be Weakening

UTICA, N.Y. (AP) — housewife, who pedaled her daughter to nursery school on bicycle "because my husband doesn't believe in two cars reports that his position "weakening."

Mrs. Donald Moore, 24, of Utica, N.Y., asked her schoolteacher husband for a second car last month, when their 3-year-old daughter was enrolled in school.

"He brought home a bike instead, she lamented. The blonde housewife went through her bike-riding routine for about a month but recently decided to add a crusade to touch.

She printed a foot-square sign behind her husband's seat in games in an effort to raise money for the cost of this equipment. believe in two cars."

Pull Up A Chair

BY: L.W. MEACHUM
in the Batesville Guard

It was impossible to hire men to haul hay last August in this neck of the woods, so we reduced the size of bales and recruited school boys to help. Out of this group I made friends with one who is eleven years old. He and his cousin of the same age sweated and struggled with the heat and bales of hay. When I started disking and plowing winter pastures, my little friend would drop off the school bus at our house to ride with me on the tractor. His reward each afternoon was the experience of driving the tractor to the house when we stopped work. Of course, I was standing with my foot close to the clutch and hand ready to take the steering wheel should he miscue. He paid me a special visit last Saturday morning to tell me about the Halloween school party which he attended the night before. It was a great party as far as he was concerned. He said the crowd was so large that he could not find his cousin.

When asked for a particular reason for finding his cousin, he replied that since fighting was his hobby he wanted his cousin around just in case one got started.

At this point, I quizzed him a little more on the subject of his fighting inclinations. He said that he did not have to have a reason to fight, that he was always able to get the other fellow to hit him first and then he would let him have it.

It seems that the battle of the seven year olds was to be about the last thing on the program last Friday night. Games and refreshments in home rooms must be dispensed with first, as dispensed with first.

The game he liked best was one where the teachers had numbers on the floor for each student to stand on. When the music started they jumped around and exchanged numbers. The person standing on the lucky number when the music stopped got a prize. This "fighting boy" got a fishing cane, a jump rope, and a plastic pipe.

After he spent his $1.40 allowance for the party, he went at it in the halls to find a fight or create one. Well, along came one of the Hatfield boys. Even without his cousin he was game enough to take on the one his cousin. Said he whipped him. I asked him about creating disturbances in the hall. He said he answered for this one. "We always go in the boy's bath room when we got to fight". He said that if a fellow refused to accept challenge to fight in the boy's bath room, everyone called him "chicken".

I asked him if he knew the McCoy boys. He said that he didn't think any of them lived around here.

He had a small skin abrasion on his chin and when asked about it he said that he got it when he ran into a wire outside the school building after the party. Indirectly, he sort of threatened me. He stated that he was going to get him a squirt gun for Halloween night and that anyone refused to give him some candy when he went tricked and treaten" he was going "to let him have it".

When I recognized him behind his "war paint" and mask standing under our porch light on Monday night, I did not take a chance, I dropped a cellophane bag of candy in his paper poke and kept my distance. He thanked me, but his gun back in its holster faded into the dark.

That boy would make a good politician. He would run a strong aggressive administration.

Seeks Probe of Milk Prices

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Legislative Council is urged Thursday to recommend that a committee be given subpoena powers and an appropriation to investigate high milk prices.

The council's Agriculture and Conservation Committee made a suggestion. State Sen. Virgil T. Fletcher Benton has said an investigation is the only way to determine the cause of rising prices.

Tech School Grant for Camden Site

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — U. S. Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., announced Thursday that the state had received approval of a $750,000 federal grant that would give impetus to starting an industrial technology institute at the old Shumaker Ordnance Depot near Camden.

McClellan said the Economic Development Administration approved the grant contingent on the state contributing an additional $617,000 and agreeing to operate and maintain the school.

The state Board of Education is to hold a special meeting Saturday in Little Rock to consider an offer by the Brown Engineering Co. of Houston, Tex., owner of the land, of about 67 acres and five administration and barracks buildings for the school.

The company had made a similar offer earlier through its Brown Foundation, but the state had been unable to accept in the last year because it had been unsuccessful in finding ways to qualify for federal funds to start the project.

McClellan said the value of the company's offer was more than $1,552,000. He said if the state accepted the proposal and came up with its share of the funds, construction should begin soon. He said rehabilitating the buildings was expected to take six months.

Approval of the grant is "a major development" in efforts to establish an industrial technology school for Arkansas, he said.

The proposed institute is to offer vocational training above that of the state trade schools, but under what is available at the college and university level. McClellan said the school would train technicians needed "to keep pace with the accelerated industrial growth that is taking place in our state."

He said the institute would accommodate about 2,000 unskilled persons for technical training each year after it is in full operation.

He said most of the trainees would be unemployed or low income workers with agricultural backgrounds who want to qualify for industrial jobs.

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — Former Chancellor Lee Ward of Jonesboro, an unsuccessful candidate for governor in 1958, has said he will vote for Winthrop Rockefeller in Tuesday's general election.

Ward, who ran unsuccessfully for 1st District congressman this year, said he would support Rockefeller in a letter to Dr. Charles E. Kemp of the Democrats for Rockefeller organization at Jonesboro.

Computers May Predict Where, When

By JIM LAMB
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Using such things as the weather, how many street lights are broken and whether the corner saloons are open—plus reliance on a smart cop's instinct—this city's policemen some day may use computers to predict where and when a crime will happen.

It's part of Crime Prediction Operations Research, a $78,000 experiment to see if there's any way to head off crime or help solve it more quickly by predicting it.

Capt. James C. Herron, Dr. Marvin Wolfgang, a University of Pennsylvania criminologist, and Joel N. Bloom, technical director of the Systems Science Division at the Franklin Institute, are trying to decide what factors will be important in predicting crime. This is the first step for devising a formula—the model in computer parlance—that will go into a computer at police headquarters to turn out daily crime forecasts.

Bloom, a lanky engineer who seems to speak as rapidly as a computer printing figures, said: "We know crimes happen every night, when they happen, where they happen. We can also get records of other things that may be a factor in the neighborhoods, such as the weather, where the taprooms open, how is unemployment, was there a big payroll, school vacations and how many street lights are out."

Bloom says these are among statistical indicators and may help give a fair indication of when crime might happen.

"But lots of things aren't covered in the statistical indicators," he said. "Like tension in the neighborhood and antagonisms."

These are things, he added, smart policemen assess every day. The team is figuring out now to include these judgment factors in the formula.

"We've got to get judgment into it," he said.

GOP's Planning Answer to LBJ Claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans are drafting a rebuttal for any intimation by President Johnson that Democratic election victories might deter the Communists from continuing the Viet Nam fighting.

With just time to catch his breath on his return from his trip to the Far East, Johnson is expected to strike out Friday on a four-day sweep of a dozen or more states, campaigning for Democratic candidates.

It would only be natural for him to report on what he considers the accomplishment of Manila conference and his visits in other Asian countries. But Republicans are alerted for what former Vice President Richard M. Nixon said may be a "Johnson blitz." Nixon told newsmen Wednesday "I predict the Johnson blitz will be a bust."

Nobody can forecast what tack the President will take in discussing the problem of Viet Nam. But reporters accompanying him wrote from Bangkok the President felt that if the Democrats made a good showing in next Tuesday's congressional balloting the Communists might interpret this as indicating national support for his Viet Nam policies and be less inclined to think the United States would tire of the war and pull out.

When he returned Wednesday night, Johnson appealed for "unity in the land" to travel successfully a long, difficult road to an honorable peace in Viet Nam.

Almost as the President spoke, the American Broadcasting Co. said in New York a poll it had taken showed that popular support for Johnson's Viet Nam policies jumped eight points between August and late October.

The network said 63 per cent of respondents now thought Johnson was doing an "excellent" or "pretty good" job in Viet Nam. Thirty one per cent called his job "not too good" or "poor."

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford said in an interview if the President bases his appeal for the election of Democrats on any contention that this will change Communist thinking, it will be disputed—and quickly.

In another political development today, Sen. Thurston B. Morton, chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, disowned a controversial GOP campaign film Democrats have called unfair.

Morton passed the word through field director Victor A. Johnston that his group will decline to contribute the $15,000 assigned as its share of the cost if the film is shown on the National Broadcasting Co. as scheduled Sunday.

Ford said he had not heard of Morton's objections. But he said he is confident that a revised version of the film, entitled "What's Going On Here," will be broadcast on schedule.

It was reported the original version opened with a shot of coffins arriving home with Vietnamese war dead, and contained scenes of student riots and racial disorders.

Actually, Now Is the Time to Do Your Christmas Mailing

BY: MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

It may seem a bit early to discuss "Christmas mailing," but did you realize the deadline for overseas packages is next Thursday, November 10 if sent by surface transportation with any reasonable expectation of delivery by Christmas? Next Thursday. Five days from today.

Military personnel are the primary recipients of this mail, so it is of added importance that the packaging be good and the arrival assured. Airmail cards and parcels should be mailed to service personnel overseas no later than December 10 to assure delivery before Christmas.

Due to additional handling, rougher transportation and distances involved, extra care should be exercised in preparing parcels for overseas mailing. All gifts should be packed in sturdy boxes, wrapped in heavy paper, and tied with strong cord. Don't let any gifts rattle around in your Christmas mail packages; sufficient cushioning is important to give the box strength. (There may be a set of the encyclopedia shipped in the box on top of yours.)

In addition to articles normally prohibited in the mails, matches and lighter fluid may not be mailed to overseas military addresses. If your package contains a lighter, be sure to send it empty. Though there is no actual weight limit to these parcels, you are better assured of delivery about the intended time if you keep the package weight down to 5 pounds.

Now, what to send? Here are some suggested items the men in Viet Nam have said they wanted and needed and which they could pack into their ditty bags:

Ballpoint pens, plastic soap boxes, Terry cloth washcloths, paperback books, foot powder, pocket comb, individual packages of nasal tissues, small package of writing paper and self-seal envelopes, small address book, plastic cigarette cases, lighters (unfilled), nail clippers, small puzzle or solitaire game, miniature (travel sizes) of games such as checkers or chess, playing cards, comic and cartoon books, small plastic snapshot holders, individual sewing kits, metal mirrors, small plastic bags (to keep personal possessions dry in the jungle atmosphere.)

In the food department: packaged sauces such as ketchup or tabasco to spice up the C-rations, flavored candy drops, fruit cake or peanut brittle (all must be in vacuum cans to keep out the ants) and homemade cookies packed in coffee cans.

All packed? Before you seal it add a poem or prayer to convey the sender's special thoughts about Christmas. This is something which carries a lot of weight without adding many ounces.

Each package you mail should include a slip showing the person receiving your Christmas gift and listing the contents. In case the outer wrapping of your package comes loose, your gift will still be delivered.

Make sure your addresses are written or printed clearly and that they are complete. Don't let your mail end up in the dead letter office because your handwriting can't be read. And don't forget to use ZIP Codes in both the address and the return address.

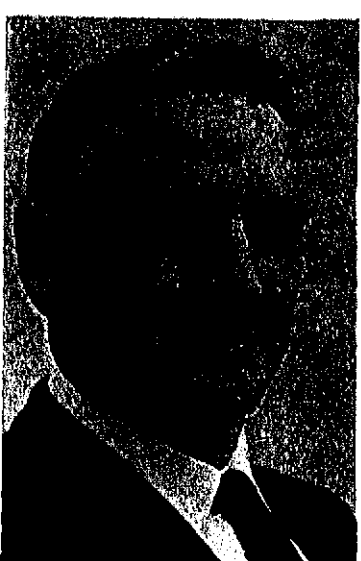

Send it. Now it's up to you to thank it. If the package weighs over 5 pounds and you hate to leave out something, why not send more than one Christmas box to him or her? And we'll all hope and pray they are home for Christmas next year!

$1.3 Million Loan Approved

OZARK, Ark. (AP) — Rep. James W. Trimble, D-Ark., announced Thursday approval of a $1.3 million loan to the Arkansas Valley Electric Co. cooperative Corp.

The loan was approved by the Rural Electrification Administration. Wallace M. Milton, Co-op general manager, said the loan will finance construction of 140 additional miles of power line, serving 1,500 new consumers, and provide for extensive system improvements.

Hempstead Agent Is Honored

HONOLULU, HAWAII — National honors for three of Arkansas' most respected County Extension Agents were awarded here tonight at the annual National Association of County Agricultural Agents Meeting. Distinguished service awards were presented to: Calvin J. Caldwell of Hope, Hempstead county; Delton E. Price of Ozark, Franklin county; and Harold Oakes of Danville, Yell county.

The Arkansas honorees were recognized for a wide variety of agricultural and economic achievements in their educational roles within the University of Arkansas Agricultural Extension Service. Similar awards go to the three top agents in each of the 50 states.

These tributes were paid the agents:

"Calvin Caldwell has provided leadership in Hempstead county for organizing a County Development Council and in assembling an over-all Economic Development plan which have served as a base for his assistance to local agricultural producers and organizations." An intensive educational program for beef producers has presented information on calving, vaccination, cattle spraying, and a variety of other practices. A comprehensive soil testing program has boosted soil sampling by approximately 300 per cent. This program has been in cooperation with the soil testing laboratory in testing chicken litter samples and soil fertility short courses for local farmers. Included pasture planning and management, chemical weed control and pecan grafting demonstrations. Caldwell has 19 years service in Extension work and has a BSA degree from the University of Arkansas where he has also studied toward his Master's degree.

The ceremony in a State Department conference room signals a slight thaw in relations between the two world powers. The pact was reached and initiated five years ago, but its formal acceptance has been delayed by various pressures of the cold war.

The Soviet Union's minister of civil aviation, Air Force Gen. Yevgeniy F. Logvinov, and Llewellyn E. Thompson, U.S. ambassador-at-large are to sign the agreement opening the way for flights on the 5,000-mile transatlantic route.

But officials said the air service will not start before next spring. They explained the designated airlines — Pan American Airways and Aeroflot — first must complete technical arrangements.

The agreement was envisaged in a 1958 cultural agreement and was worked out in the summer of 1961 in Washington. But on Aug. 21, 1961, shortly after the Berlin wall went up, the State Department said it was "not an appropriate time" to sign a formal agreement.

Since then the subject has been somewhat of a barometer of the international situation. Interest in it was revived several months ago when President Johnson proposed a series of small steps to improve East-West relations.

That brought Norbert T. Tiemann, 42, to where he is today, locked in a struggle for the Nebraska governorship with another young man, Lt. Gov. Phil Sorensen, 33.

Democrat Sorensen is the brother of the former aide to Presidents John F. Kennedy and Johnson — Theodore Sorensen — and bears a potent political name in Nebraska. He and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

Although the agreement clears the way for the first direct air service between the United States and the Soviet capital, Air Canada and Aeroflot inaugurated first regular nonstop commercial service between North America and the Soviet Union today when they began once-a-week schedules between Moscow and Montreal.

The estimated 20,000 U.S. and Canadian tourists flying to the Soviet Union each year have been making the trip via foreign airlines which make intermediate stops in Western Europe.

Reds Counter Attack Big U.S. Force

By PETER ARNETT

SAIGON (AP) — Communist troops counterattacked viciously today against a large American infantry force that had overrun enemy bunkers in the canopied jungles near Cambodia as the battle for Tay Ninh Province entered its third day.

Pitched battles have erupted in three places in the past three days in the province which borders Cambodia and serves as a main infiltration route into the heart of Viet Nam.

The pattern of enemy attacks indicated a whole Communist division may be engaged.

In the air war over North Viet Nam, two more U.S. war planes were downed Friday, bringing the total reported lost in the north to 418, a U.S. spokesman said.

There was no letup in the Tay Ninh fighting today, a spokesman said. Several battalions of American infantrymen holding the Communist bunker complex they overran Friday were attacked six times this morning and early afternoon.

A civilian irregular defense force comprised mainly of Nung tribesmen and their American officers was still fighting for its life to the west.

A U.S. spokesman said "multi-brigades" of Americans are now involved in the Tay Ninh fighting. This could be as many as 10,000 infantrymen.

Elsewhere in Viet Nam, the ground was quiet, with only the U.S. 4th Division reporting any contact.

U.S., Russia Agree on Air Service

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. and Soviet officials sign an agreement today authorizing the first direct air service between Moscow and New York.

The ceremony in a State Department conference room signals a slight thaw in relations between the two world powers. The pact was reached and initiated five years ago, but its formal acceptance has been delayed by various pressures of the cold war.
